visitors' gallery and the glass-fronted public gallery.

The 600 guests at the session included former Knesset Members, who were the only ones allocated seats at the back of the plenum chamber itself. Upstairs sat virtually the entire diplomatic corps and local and foreign religious dignitaries from many denominations.

The Christian Church dignitaries present at the ceremony included the Latin Patriarchal Vicar in Israel, Bishop Dr. Hanna Kaldany of Nazareth, Greek Catholic Archbishop Joseph Raya, Greek Orthodox Archbishop Ildoros, Greek Orthodox Archbishop of Jerusalem and the Armenian Archbishop of Jerusalem.

The Muslim and Druze religious dignitaries included the kadis of Acre, Nazareth, Haifa, Jaffa and Tayibe.

There were solid blocks of I.D.F. and Police senior officers, High Court Judges, mayors and chairmen of municipal councils, heads of state and national institutions, merchants, and other notable personalities.

Dignitaries like the two Chief Rabbis, the State Comptroller, the Attorney-General and the Governor of the Bank of Israel had to move from their customary seats because of the extraordinary crowd.

The President's Gallery (high up on the Speaker's left) was taken up by the Katzirs — Prof. Ephraim's family, and Rina Katzir, his brother's widow, and family. Former Premier David Ben-Gurion shared the place of honour right next to the Katzirs, looking fit and gratified at the proceedings.

One of the younger Katzir children, a babe-in-arms, had to be bundled out in a burst of weeping when the excitement got too intense, probably being the first to ever to attend the Knesset.

The session proceeded in a procession of pomp and ritual. The President's standard (Nes Hamasi) was brought in by a troop of Knesset Guards and planted at the rear of the dais. Huge ram's horns were blown by two rabbis of the Army Chief Chaplaincy Corps and a civilian rabbi in a series of long-drawn-out blasts with appropriate trills for the unique occasion, and an effort of lungs which left the blowers red in the face.

GIRLS CHOIR
A girls choir in one of the rear aisles of the gallery added a tuneless but discreet note with a lively rendering of "Our feet stood in Jerusalem," and helped the entire congregation along towards the end with the national anthem. The final touch of colour also at the end, was a troop of Army trumpeters with long and barbed instruments.

The session itself started and ended exactly according to schedule. However, other technical aspects of the arrangements were far from satisfactory. Long lines of cars outside the building before the ceremony proved once again, as they have often done before, that the approach road needs replanning, and an extra driveway added for occasions such as this, when a total of over 1,500 invites jam the area. The gates to the parking lot were crowded, as incoming cars crept though at a snail's pace and cars inside could not get out. This underlined the need for an extra gate. The parking area seemed suitable in size for the standards of a decade ago and the addition of an extra zone outside did not solve the problem. The arrangements to check visitors in through the main doors of the building were painfully inadequate, and doors were left closed which could easily have been manned.

Inside the chamber, too, although the number of still and movie cameras was reduced, it was evident that a radical solution would have to be sought for similar occasions, to prevent disturbance for mechanical noise and the cables snaking along the corridors and floors.

One M.K. concealing a camera under his desk, and one senior foreign diplomat "shooting" the scene (shortly before his imminent repositioning) lent an amusing human touch. The diplomats and other foreign dignitaries were able to follow the proceedings with the help of translations of the speeches.

Peace was the theme of the address made by President Salomon Shazar before his successor, Prof. Katzir, took the oath of office. Following are excerpts from Mr. Shazar's address.

"Lands of life" was the designation given this country by our Elders: "city of peace," the term applied by our kings to Jerusalem, our eternal capital. It was a peaceful revolution that we hoped to bring about in the great transformation of our people's destiny which began when the earliest pioneers first plowed the ancestral soil to which they had returned; the re-people and our land was to have been accomplished without conflict — through labour and the search for justice. And these last ten years, too, have seen unremitting efforts to bridge the abyss, to give validity to the hope bequeathed us by our founders... that a just and enduring peace would at last surely come and an end be put to slaughter.

May this faith inherent in our people's remembrance remain undistorted by the pangs of retribution. Each day that passes vindicates our belief in the centrality of this land for all Jewry and in the role that must be played by scattered Jewry in assuring the security of the land. For those masses now coming and about to come the State must provide anchor and salvation; for those not yet coming to us, the State must be the focus of love and hope. The tests and trials of absorption have been with us throughout the decade and will inevitably become even more exacting. Let not tests lead to strife — that ever-present danger. The sense of brotherhood must save us from this and we must foster brotherhood between Israel and the Diaspora, between the various streams of immigration themselves. Let us be tolerant and understanding of each other even when worlds — exile, revolutions, generations — separate us.

Engineers sign
Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — The collective labour contracts for engineers and technicians for 1972/73 were formally signed here yesterday amid a protest from the engineers which bodes ill for future labour relations.

The ceremony took place in the office of Histadrut trade union department chief Uriel Abrahamowicz, with the participation of Civil Service Commissioner Ya'acov Nitzan, Engineers Union secretary Aharon Medanes, and Technicians Union secretary Zalman Shenkman. Mr. Abrahamowicz noted that the engineers' agreement will provide guidelines for other professional groups, and Mr. Nitzan said the conclusion of automatic promotion was a major contribution.

But Mr. Medanes introduced a discordant note when he said his union had failed to gain satisfaction on overtime pay.

Israel v. Japan
in Seoul tomorrow
SEOUL. — Hongkong beat South Vietnam 1-0 yesterday to take first place in Division A of the World Cup elimination tourney and advanced to the semi-finals which will be played tomorrow.

Israel, first in Division B, will now meet Japan, second in Division A; Hongkong plays with South Korea, second in Division B, in the second playoff.

The second half of Israel's match against Japan will be broadcast live. The transmission on the 2nd programme will run from 10.40 on tomorrow morning to 11.30. The announcer will be Nehemia Ben-Avraham.

BUSH FIRES raged yesterday in the Golan Heights, at Ginosar, and at Kfar Kitch, causing extensive damage to fields and orchards.

Friction highest in Gov't firms
Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — Relations between works committees and managements in State-owned companies are much worse than those prevailing in private firms.

This point has emerged from a recent labour-relations survey, it was reported yesterday by Prof. Yanal Tabb of the Haifa Technion Industrial relations department.

Prof. Tabb was addressing the international Conference on the Role of Cooperative and Public Economics in Democratic Societies at the Sheraton Hotel here. He said a major cause for the friction was that managements of Government firms lack authority to make decisions.

At today's final sessions of the Conference the 150 guests from 30 countries will hear Prime Minister Golda Meir, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Transport Minister Shimon Peres.

Speaking at a panel session yesterday, Mr. Avichar M.K. noted the ongoing ideological debate in the Histadrut sector between the group calling for efficiency and higher output headed by Asher Yadin and Meir Amit — and the "radical" group led by Histadrut chief Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, which calls for worker participation in management and rejects profit-sharing schemes.

The inefficiency of Government, State and municipal services in the U.S. was highlighted by Prof. Samuel B. Richmond, Acting Dean of New York's Columbia Graduate School of Business. He noted that while the New York municipal services made a mess of garbage clearance, in Philadelphia private contractors were doing a good job.

On a different aspect of Government versus private enterprise Prof. Arthur Lerner, chairman of the economics department at Sir George Williams University, Montreal, noted that Canada had developed state companies, in contradiction to the free enterprise ideology, in order to preserve its economy from absolute control by U.S. business.

In the corridors of the Sheraton the absence from the conference of the most powerful elements in the Histadrut sector was remarked upon yesterday — particularly that of the Bank Hapoalim Executive and of the managements of the two bus cooperatives.

The demonstrative absence yesterday of Histadrut Secretary-General Yitzhak Ben-Aharon from the Labour Ministry-sponsored Productivity Week symposium at the adjoining Hilton Hotel was interpreted as a reprisal for the absence of Labour Minister Yosef Almoeg from the Histadrut-sponsored conference. The cooperative movement, subject of the conference, comes under Mr. Almoeg's Ministry. Mr. Ben-Aharon had been featured as one of four major speakers at the symposium — alongside Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, Labour Minister Almoeg and Manufacturers Association president Mark Moscovici. Three dead of road injuries
A pedestrian was killed on an interurban highway yesterday. Two other persons died of injuries sustained in accidents Wednesday.

Ahmed Amar, 60, of Jaffa, was hit by a truck on the Beit Shemesh-Ramle road. He was killed instantly. The truck driver, a Jerusalem man, was held for questioning.

Nadia Yehzekel, 45, of Haifa, who was struck by a car on Mt. Carmel Wednesday, died at the Rambam Hospital yesterday.

Four-year old Salah Halli Abu Jada of the Abu Rabi' Beduin tribe, was hit by a pickup truck on the Arad-Beer-Sheva road on Wednesday, while riding on a donkey. He died later at the Soroka Medical Centre.

Katzir: Humane values

In his inaugural speech, President Katzir spoke of the "swift modernization" of Israel and its material and spiritual challenges. Following are excerpts from his address:

The speed of modern life is accompanied by the appearance of alienation between men and between man and his environment. In Israel's society, too, manifestations of materialism multiply, social contrasts and gaps are not diminishing and many children receive neither the care nor the education that they deserve. In the light of our concepts and ideas, we must direct our thoughts to the problems of society, to human problems which we cannot disregard. We must work towards the bridging of communal fragmentation, so as to reduce social polarization and raise the standard of the underprivileged. We must foster the virtues of good citizenship, relations of tolerance and forbearance as between each of us and his fellow, stimulate personal pioneering and consideration for the general good and aspire to an improved social order and a landscape in which it is good and pleasant to live.

In his book "In the Crucible of the Scientific Revolution," my brother Aharon wrote:

"There is no existence for us without the humane and moral values that are the very foundation of the State of Israel. For what purpose, after all, had this State been set up, if not for the fulfillment of humane ideas and for the implementation of the human values that the Jewish people has carried in its heart for many generations?"

The ease and comfort that science has been able to bestow upon mankind must be paid for, and at times paid for at a high and frightening price. Vital raw materials are being exploited recklessly, lethal atomic arms are being piled up all the time, the environment continues to be polluted, congestion, tension and noise increase in the large towns, and the interest of the individual in his routine work is fading more and more.

Vast power is concentrated in the hands of a small number of professionals and administrators and the individual tends to be erased and loses faith in his capacity to influence the life of society and his own. It seems at times as if the "Golem" of science and technology has rebelled against its creator. Mankind must find ways properly to control the might that it has created. Israel has something to say in the matter of science and man. Let us not underrate the values and the tasks that stem from our heritage and from the vision and the humanity inherent in the very essence of the nation and the State.

When he was sworn in, our first President, Chaim Weizmann, spoke as follows to the Knesset:

"I worked all my life and strove to make science and research the basis of our national enterprise. But I knew full well that there are, beyond science, sublime values and that only through them shall we cure the ills of mankind — values of righteousness and justice, of peace and brotherhood."

May it be granted to me to follow in the footsteps of my predecessors and to contribute, like them, to the glorification of the name of Israel to the moulding of the office of Presidency into a unifying symbol for the nation and those sublime virtues of the nation that were shaped throughout the generations and are coming to fruition and being renewed in our days."

Shazar: Centrality of Land
Peace was the theme of the address made by President Salomon Shazar before his successor, Prof. Katzir, took the oath of office. Following are excerpts from Mr. Shazar's address.

Universities protest plight of Soviet and Arab Jew
Jerusalem Post Staff
Classes were suspended for one hour at all institutions of higher learning in the country yesterday afternoon, in an expression of solidarity with oppressed Jews in the USSR and in Arab lands. Campus meetings held from 1 to 2 p.m. were addressed by university heads and student leaders.

Their protests were directed specifically against the Soviets' treatment of Prof. Benjamin Levich and his son Yevgeni. Prof. Levich, a noted physicist, was suspended from his post with the Russian Academy of Science following his request for permission to immigrate to Israel. His son, Yevgeni, also a scientist, was given an army draft notice, and was later abducted by the army while on his way to a medical check-up.

Yevgeni Levich reportedly suffers from a stomach ailment. As of yesterday his family had not been informed of his fate.

"The unprecedented attack on the Levich family by the Soviet authorities is an attempt to break the leadership of the Jewish mass in Israel," Prof. Yuval Ne'eman, president of Tel Aviv University, the hundreds of students at a plus meeting.

Other speakers at the Tel Aviv demonstration included the union Rector, Prof. Shlomo Simonsohn, Prof. Boris Moisehelzon, a mathematician on the university who immigrated from Russia 3 months ago.

At Jerusalem's Hebrew University students were addressed by union president Abraham Harman, immigrant Prof. Michael Zand, students who recently immigrated from Russia and Iraq.

In Beer-Sheva, hundreds of members and students at the university of the Negev gathered in their rector, Prof. Haim Hanan, lecturer Misha Perelman, a mathematician who left Russia 12 years ago and whose family still there, prevented from him.

ADVERTISEMENTS IN THE POST

Greek colonels foil 3-ship navy coup

ATHENS. — Greek security authorities have foiled an attempted mutiny by naval officers — the first open attempt to overthrow the regime from within the armed forces since King Constantine's abortive coup in December 1967.

Byron Stamatopoulos, Under-Secretary of State in charge of Press and Information, said yesterday two retired vice-admirals and a number of serving officers plotted to seize three warships and use them to topple the military-backed regime.

TWO ADMIRALS

He declined to reveal the exact number of officers involved, but said vice-admirals Constantine Engolopoulos and Ioannis Mineos, both retired, were leaders of the plot. Engolopoulos was chief of the navy until April 1967 when he was retired for royalist sympathies which are still strong in the navy.

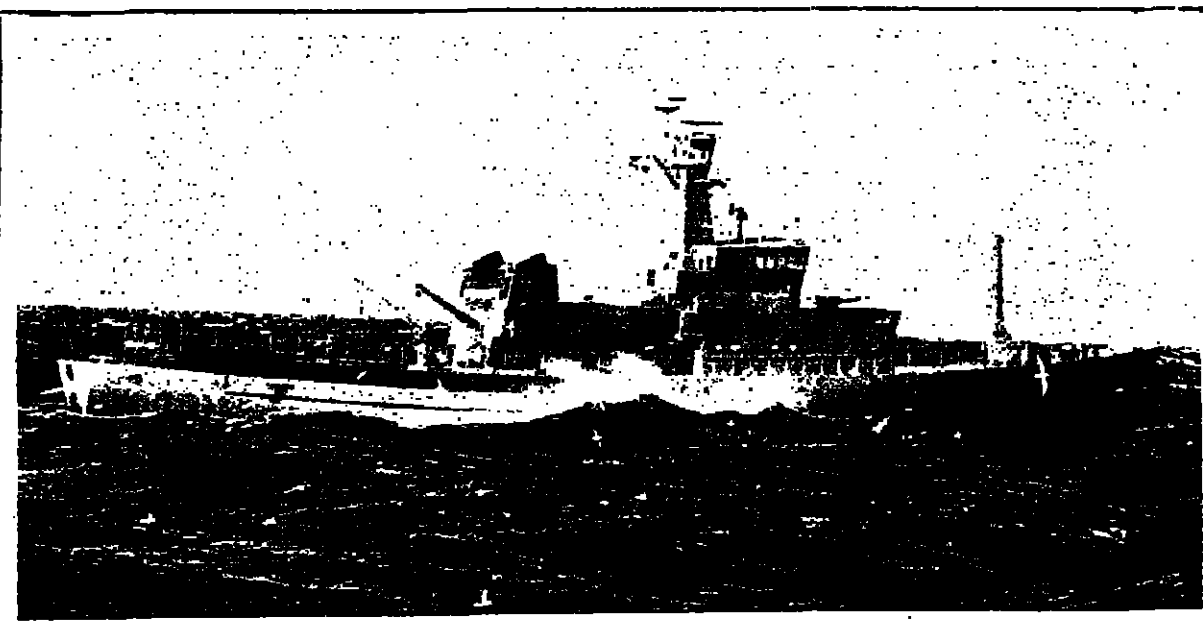

Usually reliable sources said about 40 navy officers, some of them high-ranking, had been held for interrogation. Some of them have been set free pending investigation, while others are detained at Pektari Hotel, a few miles from Athens, the sources said.

The mutineers' plan called for the three ships to sail and, once on the high seas, to send a message to the people and an ultimatum to the government. He said the mutineers were inspired by recently made statements of former premier Constantine Karamanlis calling for a national unity government which would lead Greece to normal political life.

The spokesman claimed that the Armed Forces Chief, Gen. Odyseas Angelis, "drove alone in his car to the navy base the night before the plan was to be executed and, without an escort, took control of the situation in order to show that the entire affair was nothing but an operation." (Reuters, UPI)

TALES. — Greece and Cyprus began talks in Athens yesterday on the progress of inter-communal negotiations to seek a peaceful settlement of differences between the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities.

Jellicoe Downed Vietnam copters 'suspected of spying'

According to the mass-circulation West German newspaper "Bild Zeitung" yesterday, an ex-London strip-club manager turned over her husband's diary to police. The diary was said to name several public figures who had relations with call girls, including Lord Lambton.

The paper named her as Mrs. June Humphreys, who made a brief court appearance in London yesterday on charges of keeping brothels in Soho. Her husband, James, is being hunted by police both here and abroad.

Scotland Yard sources said yesterday the police were now concentrating on trying to trace photographs and tape recordings thought to have been made at the apartment of the call girl Lambton confessed to patronizing.

Press reports said that one picture of Lambton peddled in London newspapers showed him on a bed with two girls, "Norma and Betty."

Police informants said photographic and recording equipment had been found in the £30,000 apartment. (AP, Reuters, UPI)

SAIGON (Reuters). — The Communist members of the Vietnam Cease-fire Commission said yesterday they strongly suspected that two Commission helicopters downed last month over Vietcong-controlled territory were also on an unauthorized spy flight.

The Hungarian and Polish representatives made the claim at a special meeting of the Commission called to discuss the final report of the shooting down of one helicopter with nine dead and the crash landing of the other on April 7.

After the meeting the Canadian Chief Delegate, Michael Gavrin, denied that there were any ulterior motives attached to the flights.

French experts following the meeting said the helicopters were off course and that this might have been prearranged.

"The crew belonged to Air America but I will say nothing more about that at the moment," he said. However, he strongly suspected the helicopters were on a reconnaissance flight "that had nothing to do with ICCS business."

(Air America, formed in 1950, works under contract to the U.S. Government.)

Polish officials said they too believed the evidence in the report showed the helicopters were making a reconnaissance flight.

Mr. Gavrin told a press conference that Canada and the Indonesian delegation agreed the helicopters were off course but said this was entirely due to human error and not to ulterior motives.

"All this does not camouflage the fact that ICCS helicopters were fired on; one was shot down with tragic loss of life, and after the other was forced down it came repeatedly under fire from the ground. This was not an accident," Mr. Gavrin said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Special Envoy William Sullivan ended his first round of talks yesterday with South Vietnamese leaders aimed at shortening the bitter Vietnam ceasefire.

No details were released of the meetings which followed talks in Paris between North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho and U.S. Presidential Adviser Henry Kissinger.

Chinese F.M. to visit Britain

PEKING (Reuters). — Chinese Foreign Minister Chi Peng-Fei will visit Britain, France and Iran early next month for a wide-ranging series of talks with leaders of the three countries. He will be accompanied by Assistant Foreign Minister Miss Wang Hai-Jung, 34-year-old niece of Mao Tse-Tung.

A British Embassy spokesman said the Chinese delegation would arrive by special plane in London on June 6.

BBC apologizes

LONDON (AP). — The British Broadcasting Corporation apologized yesterday to its listeners after a participant in a television news programme said he did not think the public "gave a f—" about top people going out with call girls.

"Ferguson Worthington, deputy editor of the "Sunday Telegraph," made the comment when asked how he thought people would react to current allegations that top government officials had call girl acquaintances.

Czech chess expert fights emigration tax

GENEVA (UPI). — Czechoslovak Chess Grandmaster Luděk Pachman yesterday protested to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim against the money he had to pay to be allowed to emigrate from Czechoslovakia.

The protest was written at Pachman's request and on his behalf by Niall Mac Dermott, Secretary General of the International Commission of Jurists in Geneva.

The letter said that the penalties imposed on Pachman and his family violated the right to leave any country, including one's own, under article 13 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Pachman had to pay $1,880 for passports and had to sign a declaration transferring his house to the state before he was allowed to leave.

Pachman now lives in West Germany.

Toy tank's secret message leads to prisoner 8993

WASHINGTON (AP). — When Phillip Karber found the note inside a scale model of a tank he had bought, he thought it was a joke.

"After all," he said on Wednesday, "it was like some note you find inside a doughnut which says, 'help, I'm being held prisoner inside this doughnut.'"

But the note Karber found was not a joke. Karber, a political scientist who collects tank models, said it read: "260 of these mini-tanks are being made under forced labour by prisoner 8993 Otto Kubert for a total wage of $0.40. Sale of this is against American law. Garsten Prison, Austria."

Karber checked it out. He found there is a Garsten Prison and there had been a prisoner named Otto Kubert, No. 8993, but he had been released.

He also learned that prisoners in Garsten make the tanks for the side a scale model of a tank he had bought, he thought it was a joke.

Once before, in 1963, U.S. Customs officials found notes in similar models made for the Roesler Company. That time U.S. officials learned that forced labour was being used, so the model were ordered removed for sale in the U.S., as provided by law.

This time Austrian officials said that prisons are permitted to contract for convict labour, but must pay the prevailing wage. The Austrians also said no prisoner is forced to do the work.

Kubert, according to the Austrians, was released recently after serving part of a five-year term for a series of thefts.

"Gee," said Karber, "I was just beginning to work up some plans for a 'free Otto' campaign."

Ford contacts guerrillas

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP). — The Ford Motor Co. made contact yesterday with Argentine guerrillas demanding $1m. in hospital and other aid for the poor.

The Trotskyite Peoples' Revolutionary Army said it would kidnap or kill Ford executives here unless the demand was met. Ford promised on Wednesday to do so.

While the negotiations were underway by telephone, seven members of the guerrilla army raided the offices here of the U.S. firm Adams' Aircrafts and forced the employees to listen to a talk assailing the visit here of Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

He and other foreign dignitaries are gathering in Buenos Aires for Friday's inauguration of Hector J. Campora, a Peronist, as president.

A Ford official said a final agreement had not been reached with the People's Revolutionary Army.

The guerrillas said they specifically wanted the million dollars in the form of powdered milk for poor children, hospital donations and 154 ambulances.

$60m. of Vesco funds went to firm run by son of Costa Rica president

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP). — Almost one-fourth of the $224m. that financier Robert Vesco is accused of looting from a mutual fund went to a company headed by a son of Costa Rica's President, says a Costa Rican commissioner.

Rafael Valladares made public on Wednesday his dissenting report on the findings of a Costa Rican congressional commission that investigated mutual funds.

Vesco has been accused by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) of looting the money from Investors Overseas Services (IOS). Valladares said the SEC found that $60m. was transferred from the Bahamas Commonwealth Bank, a Vesco-related enterprise, to Inter-American Capital S.A. He said Jose Marti Figueres, heads Inter-American Capital. The Commissioner asked that the money then went to Phoenix Financial, U.S., a Panama-based company that the younger Figueres also heads.

Valladares was the only member of the eight-man commission who did not sign a milder report earlier this month saying that mutual funds have benefited Costa Rica. He asked Congress to condemn Figueres' links with companies associated with Vesco and revoke the American financier's permission to live in the country.

In addition to a civil suit brought by the SEC, Vesco is under indictment in New York with former Attorney Gen. John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans. The indictment charges that Vesco tried to buy off the SEC with a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Vesco surfaced briefly yesterday in San Jose and said he would not return to the U.S. until after the Watergate Prosecutor Art Cox begins his investigation.

This aroused speculation it was hoping to make a deal Cox, exchanging his evidence immunity from prosecution tried to make the same trade the Federal grand jury investigating his campaign contribution his overture was rejected.

After campaign fund report U.S. congressman apparent suicide

EASTON, Maryland. — Representative William O. Mills was found shot to death at his home yesterday, apparently a suicide victim.

The Maryland Republican's death came one day after the "Washington Post" reported that he had received a $25,000 contribution from secret funds of President Nixon's 1972 campaign finance committee. The contributions were not reported to the Maryland Board of Election in an apparent violation of state law.

When asked if Mills had shot himself, aide Jack Shamm replied, "Yes, from all indications."

The body of the 48-year-old Congressman was found in a barn at his Mulberry Hill farm in Talbot County. The Eastern Memorial Hospital said he had a gunshot wound in the left lower chest.

Dave Thackery, a hospital spokesman, said there were powder burns on Mills' shirt indicating he had been shot at close range.

Mills was first elected to Congress in a special election in 1971. He replaced Roger C. B. Morton who was named Secretary of the Interior. Thackery said the body was taken to the medical examiner's office in Baltimore.

The "Washington Post," in a story on Wednesday, quoted several sources as saying they helped Mills' campaign manager day before the May 25, 1971, election.

Mills then released a statement saying, "I have done nothing wrong."

He added: "I personally did not receive or disburse any money for my campaign. This is the role for a candidate. My campaign manager advised me that the (Nixon) administration had arranged for funds to be made available."

"I had no access to the money nor did I direct or authorize expenditure of any of the money I am satisfied that all expenditures were legal and proper."

Mills was married, and had children. (AP, Reuters)

Watergate panel refuses to let McCord testify again

WASHINGTON. — The Senate Watergate Committee yesterday rejected a request from its star witness, James McCord, to return to the stand to refute a charge that he and his lawyer were out "to get the President."

The committee's decision was announced by Chairman Sam Ervin, Democrat-North Carolina, at the outset of the fifth day of televised hearings by the special seven-man panel set up to probe the Watergate bugging last year and other alleged acts of political espionage in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Ervin also said the committee had decided to hold an additional three days of hearings — June 6, 7 and 8 — rather than recessing at the end of yesterday's session until June 12 as had been planned.

McCord had demanded to be allowed to return to the witness table after his former attorney, Gerald Aiche, testified on Wednesday that he had been told recently by McCord's current counsel, Bernard Fensterwald: "We are going to get the President of the United States."

In announcing rejection of the request, Ervin said the committee "does not intend to get bogged down in a controversy between lawyers," and said both McCord and Fensterwald could submit sworn written statements if they liked.

Aiche also offered to take a lie detector test yesterday to back up his denial that he ever suggested the Central Intelligence Agency be blamed for the Watergate-bugging.

Aiche was questioned at length by both Republicans and Democrats seeking to shake his contention that McCord had lied. Aiche refused to back down. "I do not enjoy... in effect, calling a man a liar," he said. Aiche conceded that on some points, McCord might have misunderstood things he said. But he insisted that would not have been in the CIA matter.

"You can't interpret a man saying 'I'm going to forge CIA documents with the assistance of the CIA director' out of a man saying what do you want for lunch, or see you in Boston," Aiche testified. McCord has said that Aiche told him that if he said the CIA responsible for Watergate, the CIA personnel records would be turned in his favor.

About 30 minutes into yesterday's hearing, two spectators, a woman and a man — began shouting the back of the jammed room. Ervin banged his gavel for order. "My name is Ed Kelley and announcing for the President of the United States, 'the man who giving the V for victory sign.'"

"The chair will announce that not a political forum for the naming of candidates," Ervin said. "I am, as committee members, up with laughter." (UPI)

White House officials were criticized as being so frustrated by inability of the FBI to penetrate the Arab operations, the said, that Leonard Garment, an adviser to President Nixon, civil rights, cultural affairs, Jewish affairs, was urged to call the Jewish intelligence community — and ask them about the threat.

The "Times" report did not clear whether the term "Jewish intelligence community" referred to the Israel Government intelligence or to those Jewish groups active in anti-defamation and espionage activities within the Jewish community.

In the event, although the House feared that Jewish might be attacked, the Jarring took place without incident and unproductive, and there were reported attacks on Jewish leaders.

Bonn summit furthers detente but has few practical results

By ARTHUR J. LEON
Post Correspondent

Chancellor Willy Brandt's visit to Bonn, while significant in the symbolic sense, appears to have had little practical effect on the course of detente, especially between the two countries.

The feeling which has been in the West German mind since the signing of the Basic Law in 1949, that the specter of the East on the Rhine by the Soviet ruler is over, is not likely to be lessened by Brandt's return to Bonn.

Brandt's return to Bonn is a new development, and it is not clear whether it will lead, but it will be can hope will lead to more cooperation and to a more secure peace.

More cooperation there will certainly be. A rambling 5-page declaration signed by both men pledges them to expand efforts aimed at joint exploitation of Russia's huge reserves in natural gas, iron, nickel and lumber.

It provides for exchange of technical know-how and increased deliveries of German industrial equipment to the Soviet Union — a key goal of Mr. Brandt.

German officials said privately the Soviets were moving toward a full discussion at the conference of freer movement of people and ideas in Europe — a key German goal.

Once the lofty statements and high expectations are brushed away, however, the immediate practical results of the Bonn summit are few and far between.

There was skepticism among most observers that the thorniest issue in the talks — the status of West Berlin's economic and administrative links to West Germany — had been resolved.

For the first time the two sides jointly and formally affirmed "strict adherence and full application" of the 1971 four-power Berlin accord which covers those links, although Bonn is not a signatory to the four-power arrangement.

Mr. Brandt's aides imply strongly that this gives Bonn a direct say whenever the Berlin issue becomes troublesome and that Bonn's relations with the Soviet Union can be no better than the situation in West Berlin.

Skylab crew and sunshades ready for blastoff today

CAPE KENNEDY, Florida (UPI). — The three Skylab 1 astronauts have a go-for-launch this morning to intercept their damaged space station in orbit and attempt to shade it from the baking heat of the sun.

Project officials said Skylab may have ripped metal, wires, and rods hanging from its golden skin; but they expressed confidence that the pilots could mend the station without undue risk and stay aloft for a record 28 days.

The loss of half its power-generating capability is serious, but Skylab's most critical problem is overheating from the sun. The interior of Skylab is like an oven and must be cooled to be habitable.

One of three sun shades is expected to solve the problem. A device shaped like a lopsided beach umbrella was selected Wednesday night as the No. 1 choice for the solar shade which will be used to cool off the sun-baked Skylab.

Space Agency officials announced that Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz will be sent into orbit this morning equipped with the umbrella and two back-up devices designed to salvage America's first space station. Both back-up devices are shades which require spacewalks for their deployment.

Should the parasol deployment fail, the astronauts will try Sunday to deploy the A-frame curtain. This will be done by Kerwin during a space walk from a hatch on Skylab. The third sun shade, the sail device, would be tried later, if required, by flying the Apollo command ship within 10 feet of Skylab. Weitz would then lean out of the Apollo hatch and attach the sail using long-handled tools.

But there was last-minute trouble yesterday with the sunshades. Officials disclosed that all three versions of the heat shield were sent back to the Johnson Spacecraft Centre in Houston.

They had earlier been rushed to Kennedy Space Centre for stowing aboard the Apollo command ship the astronauts will use as their ferry to join the orbiting Skylab. There was no explanation given.

Belgian plane detained by Egyptians

CAIRO (UPI). — Egyptian authorities briefly detained a Belgian charter airplane at Cairo Airport early yesterday because it had not sought advance permission to fly over Egypt, an airport spokesman said.

It was not clear whether the plane was forced to land, as reported by the Middle East News Agency.

The plane, a Fomal DCS carrying 124 passengers from Paris to Nairobi, landed at Cairo Airport at 6:30 a.m. and was allowed to leave one hour later after a routine check. (The charter company, Fomal, said the plane was also searched thoroughly.)

A Belgian Embassy spokesman said, "This company made a mistake by not following normal procedures. We are advising it to abide by Egyptian regulations in the future."

"This was a very simple matter and we do not consider the action of the Egyptian authorities as at all unfriendly," the embassy spokesman said.

Last Sunday, another Belgian airliner on a regular flight from Brussels to Nairobi and Entebbe with 45 passengers and a crew of eight was also ordered to land at Cairo Airport where it spent the night.

The Sabena airliner was also accused of entering Egyptian airspace without prior permission.

Brandt: thinks Israel trip will help reconciliation

(AP). — Chancellor Willy Brandt believes his historic trip to Israel next month will play an important role in the reconciliation of the two peoples.

In an interview with the New York Times yesterday, Brandt said he would visit the first time by a West German leader in office, he said.

Brandt said he respects the rights of Israeli students who studied strongly against the out this does not change.

Brandt said he respects the rights of Israeli students who studied strongly against the out this does not change.

from the "important symbolic aspect" of his visit — which serves as a seal of post-war German-Israeli reconciliation — his recent summit with U.S. and Soviet leaders will help him in discussing Middle East problems with Israeli leaders.

The Chancellor stressed that his trip to Israel "is of just a parallel action" to Foreign Minister Walter Scheel's visit, though "it is that, to, because we are interested in balanced policy" in the Middle East.

Replying to a question, he denied that he wanted to play a Mediator role because "it would go much beyond our capacities for many reasons." But he said he will ask Israeli leaders "as we do in other places... whether or not others could help."

In a briefing with Israeli correspondents later, the Chancellor said he would be talking "intensively" with Premier Meir, but that "negotiations" at conclusion of "new agreements" were not foreseen.

"The meaning of this visit lies, as most people are aware, on another level," he said.

Sharps hooters hit W. German in bank extortion

SPRENDLINGEN, West Germany (Reuters). — Police sharpshooters yesterday shot a young gunman who stormed into a bank in this Frankfurt suburb and took six hostages.

The police opened fire when the gunman left the bank with one of the hostages, bank manager Friedl Saam, to drive away in a getaway car.

The gunman collapsed, bleeding, into the green family saloon and was later taken away in an ambulance. It was not immediately known how seriously he was hurt.

Police said the gunman, identified as Peter Bouchini, 22, did not return the fire.

Bank manager Saam, who took cover in the bank entrance when the shooting began, and the other five hostages all escaped unhurt, police said.

The shooting followed over three hours of tense telephone negotiations between police and the robber, who had earlier forced Herr Saam at gunpoint to open the bank safe.

Only last Monday, a 19-year-old youth armed with a sawn-off shotgun held a woman hostage in a Cologne bank for four hours before being overpowered by police. The youth had demanded 2.5m. marks — about $900,000 — ransom and a getaway car.

Little notice here was the opening with which the most powerful man in the Soviet Union bared his personality and style of rule.

In a meeting with West German industrialists, Mr. Brezhnev freely referred to the troubles he had had in convincing his party to accept his new economic "opening to the West."

"I had to criticize quite a few people," a participant quoted him as saying. "But now 15 million party members, 32 million Komsomols, and 250 million Soviet citizens are behind me."

Scheel opens 2-day talks in Beirut

BEIRUT. — West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, on the last leg of a three-nation Middle East tour, said yesterday European nations were directly concerned with the situation in the area.

Arriving from Amman at the beginning of a two-day visit to Lebanon, Scheel said Europeans "have a great interest in the establishment of an equitable and durable peace in the Middle East."

Later Mr. Scheel held talks with House Speaker Kamel Assad, Prime Minister Amin Hafez and President Suleiman Franjeh, who was host for lunch.

W. German woman-killer gets life in murder of 4

LUEBBECK, West Germany (Reuters). — Astrologer Arwed Imela, 43, was sentenced here yesterday to life imprisonment for multiple murder at the end of one of West Germany's most gruesome trials.

Mr. Imela was accused of murdering two mothers and their daughters for their money, embezzling a total of 340,000 marks (about $145,000). He kept the bodies of one pair in a deep freeze before burying them on a lonely Baltic island.

He denied the charges but was found guilty on all counts.

In the eight-months trial Mr. Imela was accused of the murder of Mrs. Ilse Ewels, 47, and her 19-year-old daughter Urte, and of Mrs. Anne-Marie Schroeder, a 47-year-old widow, and her 75-year-old mother, Mrs. Marianne Ketterle.

West German newspapers made a point that the woman-killer was defended by a woman lawyer, and sentence would be pronounced by a woman judge.

The trial opened with Mr. Imela's two former wives alleging that marital relations with the burly, wavy-haired six-footer, had been sexually abnormal.

He was also alleged to have danced naked with Mrs. Schroeder during frequent wild orgies, and to have used drugs to gain control of his victims' minds.

The prosecution alleged that he made advances to all the women involved, hoping to win both their affections and control of their fortunes.

French troops leaving bases in Madagascar

PARIS (Reuters). — France and Madagascar have reached agreement on the withdrawal of French troops from the Indian Ocean island. The agreement was "satisfactory for both parties," French Secretary of State Jean Deniau said in announcing the move on Wednesday night.

The troop withdrawal decision coincided with Madagascar's action in pulling out of the Franc Zone following rising discontent over its links with France. More than 4,000 troops are stationed at French bases in Madagascar.

t. Calley appeals conviction

GTOWN (AP). — The U.S. Military Appeals on Wednesday to hear an appeal William Calley for his role in the My Lai Massacre.

Agreeing to a hearing, the number court also narrowed to three the issues on which consider overturning or reducing Calley's sentence to 30 years.

When he led an Army platoon through My Lai in South Vietnam on March 16, 1968, twenty-four other GIs held on differing charges growing out of the massacre, but Calley was the only one convicted.

He was originally sentenced to life imprisonment, but that sentence was subsequently reduced by the Commander of the 7th Army.

In a parallel act, former Army Secretary Robert Frohne rejected the recommendation of an Army board that Calley's sentence be reduced to 17 years.

U.S. expert tells economic parley: Gov't-Histadrut conflicts 'inevitable' in Israel society

By MARK SEGAL
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A prominent American economic expert yesterday predicted that intensified conflict between the Government and the Histadrut was inevitable under conditions such as Israel's, where 90 per cent of the labour force is organized.

Prof. Eli Ginzburg of the Columbia University Graduate School of Business said the Government and the labour federation "cannot sidestep or delay confrontations relating to wages and income policies."

The professor, who is chairman of the U.S. National Manpower Advisory Committee, was speaking at the second day's session of the International Conference on the Role of the Cooperative and Public Economies in Democratic Societies at the Sheraton Hotel here Wednesday.

Focusing on concrete examples, Prof. Ginzburg said: "The non-political President of Israel intervened to ask Yitzhak Ben-Aharon to withdraw his resignation from the Histadrut secretary-generalship; two days ago Mr. Ben-Aharon walked out of the anti-inflation committee. I hold that these two instances reflect real problems."

Speaking of Israel's special economic conditions, Prof. Ginzburg remarked: "Israel is the only country in the world where it is possible to open a university without a penny, and where at the same time housing is at its most expensive."

Predicting that the Histadrut would soon face stiff competition, he noted: "Until now Israel's industrial policy was more a matter of working out arrangements with the Minister of Finance than of equal treatment under the law... The socialist sector often had a distinct advantage... But the time is not far off when no man, not even a strong Minister of Finance, will be able to make special arrangements with each entrepreneur, whether large or small."

He noted that "Israeli democracy has been led by a small group of leaders who keep changing positions in three key organs: Histadrut, party and government... This is still the pattern but it will probably not endure for long."

No factory workers

Noting the closed nature of Histadrut representation, the professor complained at not seeing members of Hevrat Ovdim factory workers committees at this conference. Urging the federation to rise to the challenge of technological change, Prof. Ginzburg said the Histadrut's test will be how it copes with an increasing predominance of brain workers in the labour force.

Hevrat Ovdim secretary Asher Yadin noted that Histadrut plants pay 20 per cent more than private ones. He held their main problem was persuading 240,000 Histadrut employees to keep down wage claims.

Meir Amit pointed out that this Histadrut industrial complex will distribute $1.5m. from its 1972 profits to 5,800 of its workers. This is the third consecutive year Koor operated a profit-sharing scheme.

Hevrat Ovdim assistant secretary Ehud Shiloh predicted the need to transfer workers from one Histadrut industry to another and even close down some of them. Shiloh Ovdim manager Avraham Ofer, M.K., held that public housing should not be limited in size or quality so as not to lower the social status and market value of neighbourhoods.

Later the 150 foreign guests from 30 countries and the 200 Israeli participants were guests at a reception given by Mayor Yehoshua Rabinowitz at the exhibition grounds.

Foreign delegations come from Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Costa Rica, Cyprus, Denmark, Ethiopia, Finland, France, West Germany, Holland, India, Iran, Italy, Luxembourg, Mauritius, Mozambique, Norway, Philippines, Rumania, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United Kingdom, the United States and Venezuela.

Avant-garde artist says Israel is 'Ireland of the mind'

By YA'ACOV FRIEDLER
Jerusalem Post Reporter

MIN HOD. — For the artistic and intellectual change of Europe, Israel is a sort of "Ireland of the mind." Over it they can fight the wars of their views, progressive or reactionary," Henry Chopin, artist and editor of the underground art magazine "Ou," published in London, said yesterday. He is here for a week-long symposium on avant-garde art.

Mr. Chopin said the atmosphere in artistic circles in England was anti-Israel, but now that he was seeing the country, for the first time "I am beginning to change." He was glad that he could now definitely state that "Israel is not a country of oppression. You don't see the smiling faces and happiness that I have noticed here under an oppressive regime and I have visited such countries."

Another of the participants, Pierre Resnay, an art critic from Paris, said that for those of the intellectual circles of Europe, not politically or emotionally involved in the Near East crisis, "Israel is, in a way, an abstract nation... It is perhaps the theatre of Israel that it is being excited by these circles as a means of purely self-oriented political judgment."

He thought that the left was against Israel for abstract reasons, except from the point of view of their own anti-imperialist opinions, without actually relating to the reality of the country and the conflict. Israel was a topical and handy vehicle for their views, now the Vietnam war has ended, and he feared that Israel may continue to be the battleground for their views until peace is established here too.

As for avant-garde art, he said "what is avant-garde today will be tomorrow." Today's avant-garde artists no longer paint to sell, but involve their work in social purposes, for happenings, in social organization and theatrical decorations, which liberate them from the necessity of selling paintings.

The Ein Hod painter Marcel Co added that "art for sale is dead." Our guests have told us throughout Europe, in the U.S. as far away as Japan, today's artists work for the happiness of society, creating happenings, art folk festivals and to enlighten the mind. The avant-garde abhorred the rule of money over art and away from the dealers who paintings that can be sold, a picture of their artistic value.

Haifa Labour Court wants tax dropper

HAIFA. — The Labour Court urged the Finance Ministry to cancel notices sent to 225,000 owners in the Greater Haifa by the property tax department. These owners were, in the past, exempt from the tax because homes were valued at IL30,000 or less.

As the value of real estate has gone up sharply, the local tax has revised its assessments — the exemption ceiling has risen to IL30,000.

Boston	16	20	.444	2
Cleveland	15	23	.395	3 1/2

The New York Yankees brought back an old tradition Wednesday — the occupation of first place. The Yankees went into a tie for the lead with the Detroit Tigers in the Eastern Division of the American League with a 6-5 victory over the Tigers.

Matty Alou delivered a two-out double in the ninth inning to drive in the tying and winning runs. The victory gave the Yankees a 20-20 for the season, the same mark as Detroit.

The Milwaukee Brewers missed a chance to make the Eastern Division a three-way tie when they lost 5-3 to Boston.

In the National League, Ken Rader singled home the winning run in the 10th inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 4-2 victory over the Montreal Expos, while Dave Concepcion's two-out single in the ninth inning scored Johnny Sanchez and gave Cincinnati a 4-3 victory over Houston.

Liverpool wins UEFA Cup
Liverpool salvaged the last vestiges of British pride by beating Muenchen-Gladbach, to win the UEFA Cup Wednesday night. English clubs have won two of the three major European Championships for the last few years, but this season Leeds were beaten in the final of the Cup-Winners Cup and Britain has no representative in next Wednesday's European Cup.

Liverpool went into the second leg of the final with a 3-0 lead; and, although the German team mounted wave after wave of attacks, they could only manage to pull back two goals. By about the 16th minute they had worn themselves out and for the last quarter of the game Liverpool, playing well within themselves, were able to contain them with no problem.

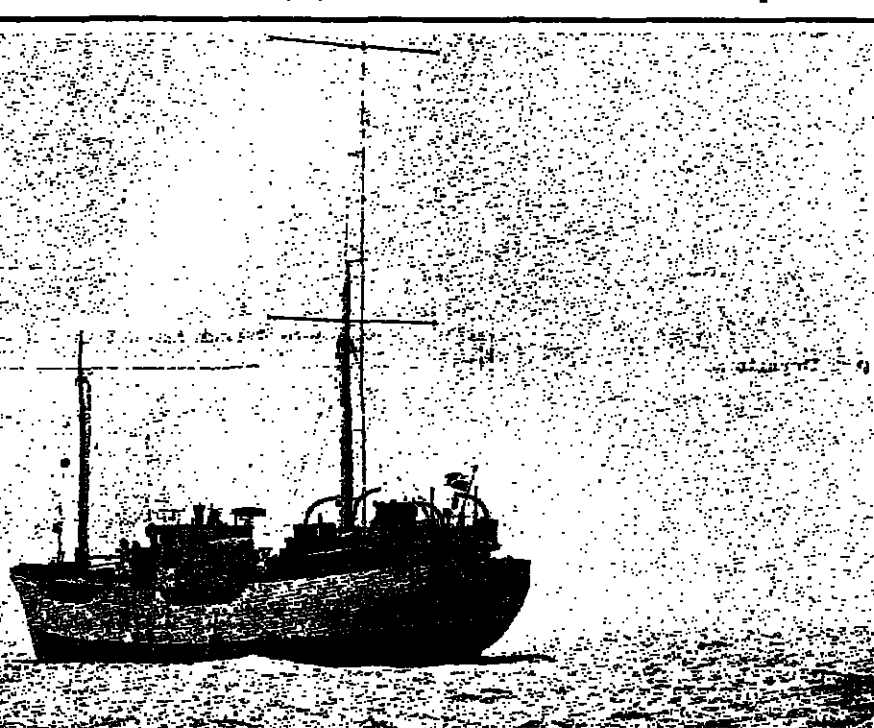

Trevino: Golf's fourth millionaire

Lee Trevino became pro golf's fourth millionaire by tying for second place in the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic last weekend, according to figures released Monday by the PGA tournament players division.

Trevino earned $16,127.50 for finishing second and also received $502.50 from the pro-am event. That boosted his year's earnings to $142,978 and raised his career total to $1,002,401.97.

Australia's Bruce Crampton continues to lead the season's money winners with 187,551, followed by Jack Nicklaus at $146,064 and then Trevino.

Lanny Wadkins is fourth at $91,573, while Dave Hill, who earned $35,000 for scoring his fourth victory at Memphis, jumped from 24th to 25th at $79,308.

Watergate and impeachment — America's ultimate weapon

WILLIAM MILLINSHIP
ASHINGTON (OHA). — to the uncovering of the 'interlocking political' known collectively as 'gate', there is a deep to believe that Con- could use its ultimate against President Nixon enachment. But that pos- unifiable only a few ago, is now being dis- publicly, and the Library gress reports a spate of about the conduct of enachment proceedings.

is no large body of nt to refer to, impeach- the power that Congress at least through history. Eng were started in some (33 against federal appointed for life, who be removed in any other but only 12 reached the age. Two of these dozen ere dismissed, six resulted icial and only four in ons. The four were all one of the 36 American ote who preceded Mr. as President Andrew n, who assumed office when at Lincoln was assassinated- 1865.

present for a conviction, and specifies that, when a President is on trial, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court must preside. This provision was inserted to avoid a conflict of interest situation, since the normal president of the Senate is the Vice-President of the U.S.

The only punishment is "removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States." But, once impeached, the person is liable to "indictment, trial, judgement and punishment" as an ordinary citizen in the normal courts of law. There can be no appeal against an impeachment conviction.

The Constitution is somewhat vague about the kind of wrongdoing that would justify impeachment proceedings.

Article 2, Section 4 of the Constitution says: "The President, Vice-President and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

But it is generally agreed that the interpretation of that section is a political rather than a legal matter. An impossible offense has been fairly described as "whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at a given moment in history."

Politics certainly dominated the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson, as a Southerner himself, from North Carolina, he advocated lenient treatment of the Confederate states in the aftermath of the Civil War. The radical Republicans in Congress favoured repression.

impeachment passed by the House of Representatives against Johnson concerned alleged violations of the Tenure of Office Act. The two other articles sought to impeach him for publicly criticizing the Congress.

President Johnson, said Article 10, "did attempt to bring into disrepute, ridicule, hatred, contempt and reproach the Congress of the United States and the several branches thereof..." and did "make and deliver with a loud voice certain intemperate, inflammatory, and scandalous harangues and did therein utter loud threats and bitter menaces against Congress as well as the laws of the United States duly enacted thereby, amid the cries, jeers and laughter of the multitudes then assembled and within hearing..."

The impeachment was an essentially political operation. Johnson was not accused of bribery, graft, nor of complicity in such common-law crimes as burglary, perjury or obstruction of justice. The operation failed, but only just. Thirty-five Senators voted for impeachment, when the two-thirds majority required was thirty-six.

But the rules drawn up by the Senate in March 1868 for the trial of President Johnson have remained largely unchanged. Essentially they lay down a criminal trial in court. Both prosecution and defence may present evidence and witnesses. The defendant has the right to legal counsel and to cross-examination of witnesses for the prosecution.

On paper, it looks neat, tidy and a reasonable way of going about things. But even the most lethargic imagination must be shaken at the prospect of setting this awesome machinery in motion against the most powerful man in the modern world who, only a few months ago, won re-election by an historic landslide.

The consequences not only for the United States, but for the world would be incalculable. It is a measure of the gravity of the Watergate crisis that such a catastrophe should be considered even a remote possibility.

Britain is your BEST holiday- BEA knows Britain BEST.

A holiday in Britain is a real experience, something you remember long after you return home. It's a wonderful combination of travel and rest. From the time you step aboard your BEA Trident you're en route to a carefree holiday of a lifetime.

What do you expect from a perfect holiday?

LONDON — cosmopolitan and sophisticated, warmhearted and smiling. Can you imagine a trip to Europe without London?

The theatres, the department stores, Marks & Spencer, the museums and art galleries, Madame Tussaud's, concerts, ballet and... English soccer. Very few people would miss a chance to go to London.

But BRITAIN is not only London.

Ask BEA about it. There is rough, tough and majestic Scotland; lovely and dreamy Wales; mysterious Devon and the quiet beauty of Cornwall. Britain is full of interesting and fascinating places and Britain knows how to make you feel good.

BEA offers you an exciting choice of WINDSOR HOLIDAYS this year. For instance: 7 days in London for only £15.45; or the 11-day Grand Tour of Britain from the Channel to Loch Ness for only £91.60, including full board.

BEA really looks after you:

Interested in theatre tickets or a football game? BEA gets them for you.

Care for a self-drive-car? BEA has it ready for you at the airport or wherever you want it.

Once you've enjoyed the pleasures Britain has to offer BEA flies you to any European destination. Its unique network covers the whole of Europe with daily frequency. It's really worthwhile to plan this year's holiday together with BEA. Call at our Sales Office — 59, Rehov Ben Yehuda, Tel Aviv (Tel. 229251) or see your Travel Agent and ask for the colourful WINDSOR brochure. It's in Hebrew and English and gives you some exciting suggestions.

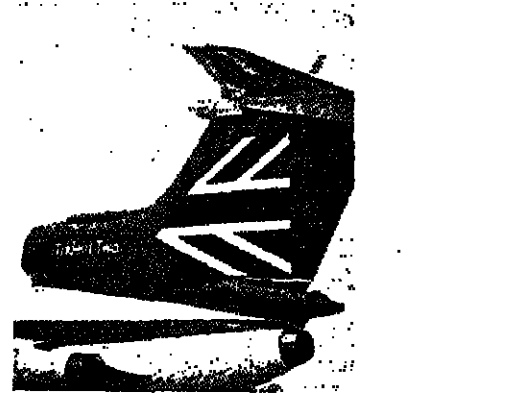

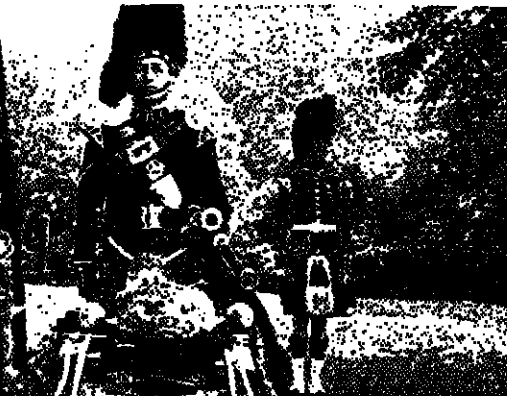

BEA also offers you frequently reduced-rate groupflights. BEA operates 9 weekly nonstop flights to London. Leaving daily at 9.25 — a convenient time with no need to get up too early — and twice weekly, Sunday and Monday, also at 3.25 p.m.

BEA wishes you a pleasant Holiday in Britain.

TEACH ENGLISH TO ADULTS?
(Read on only if you are a native American, British or Canadian!)

Do you have a sneaking suspicion that you'd be a great teacher? Because you like to explain, entertain, help people learn? Because you're young enough (under 70) to learn a new profession? Because you're old enough (have B.A.) to win the respect of Israeli adults? Because money means nothing to you, we pay only IL1,000 a month. We prefer retired professors (full), actresses (not too full), graduate students (filling) and faculty wives, but will accept any wonderful person. For details:

Iran gets full oil control

TEL AVIV STOCKS

Market shifts interest

TEHRAN (AP). — After two months of hard bargaining and negotiations, carried out by some 50 experts from both sides, Iran and the Western oil consortium concluded and signed yesterday an agreement which puts at the disposal of Iran the world's largest oil field, largest refinery, largest man-made island and largest export terminal as well as "full and real" control of the oil industry.

The Iranian oil industry was nationalized by the Shah on the Persian New Year, March 21, 1973. Previously Iran had no handling rights over the oil industry which it owned.

In his ultimatum to the Western consortium, the Shah warned that their 1954 agreement would not be renewed in 1979 when it expired and therefore they should hand over operations to Iran and sign a 20-year supply contract.

TEL AVIV. — The Stock Exchange was slightly mixed yesterday, with interest centering on shares in which turnover is generally very light. The general index of share prices fell by 0.24 per cent, to stand at 296.37.

Of the ordinarily low-turnover shares, Bank Discount A jumped in price from 660 to 720, on an unusually large volume of 59,000 shares (turnover in this share is usually only 1,000-2,000). This gave the issue a week's gain of 125 points.

Fri-Or, which belongs to the same low-marketability category, closed unchanged yesterday at 195 after being traded at 190. Turnover was 27,000. Shemen also enjoyed sudden interest, advancing 13½ points in the variables to reach 133½, with 34,000 shares changing hands. The Market was reacting to rumors that Koor Enterprises are interested in buying shares in the company.

Heavy fluctuations were recorded for Gold Storage, which declined from 417 on Wednesday to 406 in the opening and was trading yesterday at between 401 and 409. Electric Corporation rose three full points, to 80½. Lewin-Epstein advanced in the opening to 88, three up, but weakened later to 85.

Most active issue was Bank Mizrahi, which lost two points to close at 163 (65,000 shares traded). In second place was Chai Investment, which on 44,000 shares traded gained half a point to 235. General Mortgage Bank's 10-per-cent convertible bonds, making their first appearance on the Market, were quoted at 99 (24,000). The bank's shares lost 2½ points, easing to 235.

Turnover in the Market amounted to 112.3m., of which 70 per cent was in the variables. Bond turnover was 115.3m.

Urge legal system to develop land

By DAVID KRIVINE
Jerusalem Post Economic Correspondent

It is imperative to create a "legislative instrument with teeth," so that the authorities can prevent private ownership from strangling land and urban development, Micha Talmon, of the Israel Lands Administration, told a symposium organized by the Israel Management Centre in Jerusalem on Wednesday evening.

The fact that the best form of savings in Israel has been the acquisition of a plot had devastating effects on urban development. Whole areas of good building land in Tel Aviv and elsewhere stagnate, because the owners leave holdings unoccupied — as a kind of nest-egg for the future.

"In Holon, 4,000 dunams belong to 10,000 proprietors. Instead of using this, we have to edge onto farming land."

"Let us must keep sections of agricultural land in existence along the coastal plain, otherwise we shall have a solid strip of concrete and asphalt running from Roeh Hanikra to Ashkelon," Mr. Talmon pointed out that the tax on empty plots was halved in the recession of 1966 — and has not been restored back to the original level till the present day. "If the tax was increased, more lots would be brought to the market," he said.

He added: "Perhaps owners of a given block should be given three, or else five years to get together and make a plan. If they don't, they should be expropriated."

Shmuel Peleg, of the Housing Ministry, stated that 40 per cent of public housing is situated in outlying development areas, whereas all private construction is concentrated in the central zones of the country. "If construction goes on at the present pace, for example in Jerusalem, we shall start running out of land five years from now," he warned.

Knesset Member Gideon Patt (Gahal) supports private ownership, but agreed that a bill must be given to development. The land-betterment tax gets smaller the longer a property is held. "If you sell your plot after five years, you are taxed; if after 20 years, you are not. This encourages hoarding," he concluded.

Three areas in the central zones are scheduled for rapid growth in the next decade, according to Mr. Talmon. The first is Ashdod, due to become a big city — with 5,000 housing units going up each year. The second is the sands of Rishon LeZion, where a special company will be formed to promote the erection of 20,000 dwellings.

Finally, there are still 50 scattered sites of ma'abarot and temporary housing (including asbestos huts), ready for re-development. They are occupied by 8,000 families. The plan is to build 25,000 units, providing for the 8,000 families, plus 15,000-20,000 other residents.

Gold still serves purpose in 'barbaric and divided world'

By MOSHE ATER
POST Economic Editor

THE renewed gold rush — which brought the price to two and a half times the official level — was of course distasteful to the editor of the London "Economist." "Something pretty barbaric is now going on," was its comment this week.

What else could be expected from a true-to-form Keynesian, who has long advocated demonetization of gold, calling it a barbaric relic that handicaps free, rational use of monetary resources?

Still, the facts cannot be shrugged off, so the "Economist" professes some explanations. "The rush into gold has been both cause and outcome of the rush out of dollars, the result of the Wicksellian business, oil shortages, the spectre of confrontation in the Middle East and Wall Street's worries about an inflationary economy — all piled up one on top of the other."

Others have given additional reasons: South Africa's curb of gold exports (for the time being) and the expected U.S. lifting of the ban on private gold purchases. This array of cogent reasons might even begin to look impressive, if not for the operating phrase concerning the stockholders, who obviously cannot be taken seriously, and indirectly cast suspicion on all the rest. "Central bankers," the "Economist" reports with a sigh of relief, "affected to regard the rocketing gold price as being of less note than recent rises in the prices of, say, beef or copper."

HUMAN FOLLY
Admittedly, bankers could regard gold speculation with equanimity, now that all major currencies are floating and there is no fixed exchange rate left to be battered by the tidal wave of hot money. This gold rush has not been accompanied by a monetary crisis, one of the reasons to pass it off as human folly.

However, the "Economist" draws conclusions from the affair that don't quite accord with this approach. One is that "floating is fine," but the other is that "there still remain the problems of the huge overhang of dollars and of finding an acceptable reserve asset."

After all, the hedging problem does exist, quite apart from oil shakiness, and it isn't only Wall Street which is worried about inflation. Moreover, central bankers cannot remain aloof to events in the gold market because gold is somehow different from beef or copper.

If gold were only a yellow metal, central bankers could dispose of their gold stocks at good profit, letting private speculators foot the bill and continue the game among themselves. This is what the "Economist" would like.

As a matter of fact, limited sales of gold from official stocks were suggested by the U.S. Administration a few months ago, but this was rejected by the European monetary authorities; and the "Economist" agrees that it would not serve the purpose. It would re-official the gold and free-market prices of gold and prove that governments do care about the latter, thus encouraging it to rise even more. Moreover, persuading central bankers to sell their gold while anticipating a continued rise in gold prices would be difficult.

The disturbing fact is that, gold's theoretical uselessness notwithstanding, investment in gold stocks (and gold-mining shares) have proved profitable. Clever speculators, who climbed on the gold bandwagon after the two-tier gold market was established in 1968 (after gold was officially demonetized, and its free-market price was declared to be of no concern to the central banks), earned extra-high profits — over 20 per cent annually. And even those who bought gold 20 years ago and sat it out without getting any current yield may now realize a profit amounting to almost 5 per cent a year on their capital — or about what they would have got in the London or New York stock markets.

Incidentally, the Bank of Israel has always kept faith with Keynesian orthodoxy, and has kept almost all of its foreign currency reserves in dollar (or DEM) interest-carrying deposits. As a result, it does not share in the huge (potential) gains now enjoyed by other less sophisticated central banks, which continue to keep bars of barren gold in their vaults.

ONE-TIME ACTION
The "Economist" considers another possibility — namely a one-time action that would force the central banks to sell their gold. President Nixon, it says, should announce that the U.S. is ready to sell Fort Knox at whatever price he (or the market) may name. This would break the present price, especially if the market assumed that other central banks would follow suit after some initial grumbling. Gold would thus be thrown out of the monetary system and everybody would rush to get rid of a commodity that has outlived its usefulness.

However, the preconditions for the success of such a trick are that the market would believe in its efficacy that people would assume that all central banks were following the U.S. example and that the U.S. would dare to get rid of its gold chest in the first place. Unfortunately, this is unlikely, because "gold still remains the traditional hedge for many people" — including monetary authorities, while the substitute recommended by the "Economist" — "some sort of composite index" — is still an academic concept remote from reality.
